Dear

Thank you for your request for information under the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act (2002).

I now respond to your request as follows:

“With both Edinburgh and Glasgow Universities revealing that they have to reveal trigger warnings to their students before showing certain subjects such as classic fairytales and Greek & Roman Mythology, please can your education authority reveal under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and Freedom of Information Scotland Act 2002 what exact trigger warnings have had to be put in place for students in any subject the colleges you run teach? Can it also be revealed how many students it took to insist that the revealed trigger warnings had to be put into place for each subject taught?”

Glasgow Kelvin College provides a supportive and inclusive environment for all students, facilitated by extensive college-wide guidance services. Therefore, the college does not have in place explicit trigger warnings.

I trust the above response meets your request for information in full.

Should you be unhappy with the College's response you are entitled to seek a review of the response. To seek a review, you should apply, in writing, to Derek Smeall, Principal, stating the grounds for seeking a review.

I also wish to advise you that the Scottish Information Commissioner has launched an online appeals service via their website – the link is as follows:

Thank you for your interest in the College.

Yours sincerely
